Ruby Keeler Goes To Mother's Home As Al Cites Trouble

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26—Al Jolson, veteran stage, screen and radio star, and his wife, Ruby Keeler, well known film actress, were living in separate abodes today, with Jolson sadly admitting there "was a little trouble."

Ruby is living with her mother, while the famous singer of mammy songs remained in the Jolson home in San Fernando Valley.

The Jolsons have been married for 11 years and Jolson declared last night:

"I still say Ruby is the greatest girl in the world and I would rather have been married to her for 11 years than any other girl for a whole lifetime."

Ruby had reached the heights in her career as a New York dancer in 1928 when she married Jolson after an exciting romance. She came to Hollywood and immediately scored hits in the movies both as a dancer and as an actress.

Recently the Jolsons announced the adoption of a son, Al, Jr., and last September they celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary with a big party at a swank Hollywood night club.

Jolson would not discuss why he and his pretty wife had separated, and Miss Keeler preferred to remain in seclusion.

Allied Troops Find Three Vulnerable Points In Siegfried Line

PARIS, Oct. 26—German losses in dead and wounded in two attacks on the Moselle and Saar river sectors today were semi-officially estimated at 3,000.

Espionage agents reported that several hospital trains, filled with wounded from these battles, were located at Trier, north of the zone of fighting.

In spite of snow, sleet, and biting cold on the front, German patrol activity was increased today. Military authorities in Paris described the patrol efforts as a strenuous search for weak points, to be used as points of entry for a major attack, if and when it comes.

These probing activities at present are strongest North of Forbach and East of the Moselle river. One German patrol of 50 men accidentally stumbled into a village occupied by the French in the vicinity of Apach. The Germans launched an attack, but were repulsed.

Vans Remain Active
Meanwhile propaganda vans continued cruising up and down the line, broadcasting the assertion that Germany has no quarrel with the French. Each time they show themselves they are met with heavy fire from the French side.

BERLIN, Oct. 26—German shells and machine gun bullets today rained on French territory following the repulse of a French counter-attack in the Saar sector, the official German war bulletin said today.

"A French battalion attacked the height 12 kilometers (7.5 miles) west of Voelklingen, which we had captured Tuesday," the communique said.

The attack has collapsed already, and French territory is unharmed. (Continued on Page Four)

COUNTY READY TO GUARD CORN HUSKING TITLE

DELAWARE, Oct. 26 — The stage was set today on the Lee Main farm, near Delaware, for Ohio's greatest agricultural sporting event—the state corn husking contest—which is expected to attract 25,000 persons Friday.

Twenty sectional and county champions will compete for the state title and the right to represent Ohio in the national contest at Lawrence, Kan., November 3. Two separate contests are scheduled, one for standing and one for shock corn.

Eligible to defend his 1938 standing corn crown is Robert Hart, of Darke County. Lawrence Wright, of Pickaway County, is the 1938 shock corn king.

The shock corn contest was set to get under way at 10:15 a. m. and the standing corn contest at 11 a. m. The first event on the program, set for 9 a. m. was the judging of draft teams by Charles Wentz, of Upper Sandusky.

PEN GUARD CONFESSES TO SELLING TICKETS, FIRED

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—The resignation of a guard, Michael Tierney, today marked Warden Frank Henderson's investigation of the sale of Irish sweepstakes and other lottery tickets inside the walls of Ohio penitentiary. The warden said that Guard Tierney, appointed from Dayton about nine years ago, resigned after admitting that he had dealt in lottery tickets.

MASSACHUSETTS WANTS PUMPKIN FOR FESTIVAL

A Pickaway County pumpkin was chosen Thursday to represent Ohio in a national observance of Thanksgiving at Plymouth, Mass. Each state is being asked to send a product that will exemplify it at the celebration.

Mack Parrett, Jr., secretary of the Circleville Pumpkin Show, was called by telephone by the secretary to Governor Hurley of Massachusetts, who requested that a pumpkin be sent to be added to the collection of articles. Mr. Parrett referred the request to Herman Hill, director of the pumpkin display in the Pumpkin Show. Mr. Hill was preparing Thursday to send a pumpkin to Massachusetts.

Whether the pumpkin to take the long trip would be one belonging to William Duvall of near Ashville or another that has been offered to the chairman is not certain. Duvall's pumpkin, an excellent specimen, weighs about 30 pounds. The other, the name of the owner not being available, weighs about 63 pounds.

FIGHTING LOOMS HERE ARMS VOTE

Senator Clark, Missouri, Takes Leading Role Against F. D.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—Anti-administration amendments to the neutrality bill today promised lively fighting before the senate votes on the basic issue of repeal or retention of the arms embargo.

Controversy over these proposals, some commanding threatening senate support and all bitterly opposed by the administration, may delay a vote on embargo repeal until tomorrow, when leaders expect to dispose of the bill itself.

The question of repeal or retention of the embargo will come separately before the senate in a proposal by Senator Clark (D) Missouri, to re-enact the arms embargo section of present neutrality law as an amendment to the pending administration repeal bill. Administration leaders said the Clark amendment would muster "about 28 votes" forces fighting the amendment, said they would pull "more than thirty."

But before that the senate must settle a close fight over another Clark amendment, adding four members of congress to the munitions control board. This was defeated 45 to 41 on Tuesday, but Senator Wheeler (D) Montana, moved to reconsider it, and proponents said they could "count on" two new votes.

Should the reconsideration vote on the munitions control amendment pass. (Continued on Page Four)

RUSSIA REJECTS BRITAIN'S IDEA OF CONTRABAND

MOSCOW, Oct. 26—Soviet Russia today firmly rejected, as a violation of international law and a peril to neutral populations, Britain's notes establishing a war contraband list.

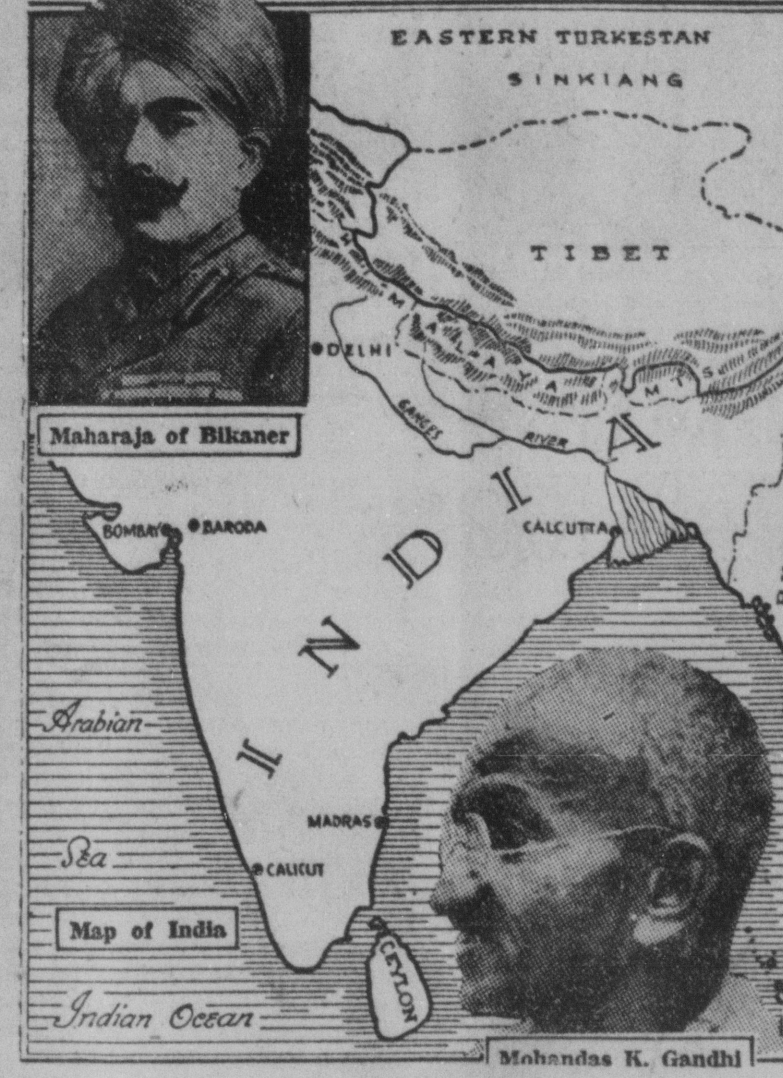

A reply signed by Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov and handed to British Ambassador Sir William Seeds, said:

"The announcement by the British government through unilateral action, of a list of goods proclaimed war contraband, violates the principles of international law. . . gravely impairs the interests of neutral countries, and destroys international trade."

"By including in its contraband list such articles as fuel, paper, cotton fodder, footwear, clothing and materials for their manufacture, and even all foodstuffs. . . the British government proclaims as contraband basic articles of mass consumption. . ."

Heavy Rainfall Assists Wheat, Ends Fire Scare

One inch of rain, the heaviest recording since July 18, drenched Pickaway County Wednesday, and more rain continued to fall during the day.

The rain was ideal to help the wheat crop that has been suffering from the drought and to put an end to the series of field and forest fires in recent weeks due to the extreme dry weather.

The rain was needed for the wheat crop. F. K. Blair, county extension agent, explained that some of the wheat had not sprouted due to the dry weather. Wheat that had sprouted, he pointed out, had made little headway due to the lack of moisture. Farmers completed their seeding this year in parched fields and hoped for showers to give their wheat a boost before winter weather arrived.

Rainfall during the month of October to date is only 1.43 of an inch. Only .43 of an inch was reported prior to Wednesday's showers. Normal for the month is three inches. The dry weather extended through the months of August and September.

DIES' ACTION IN NAMING 563 AS 'REDS' DEBATED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—House members split into warring factions today in a battle over demands for ousting 563 government employees listed by the Dies committee on rolls of the American League for Peace and Democracy, branded by the group as a "Communist front" organization.

Rep. Noah Mason (R) Illinois, member of the committee and a persistent foe of the league, demanded that the government employees, many of whom denied they were league members, either be forced to resign from the organization or lose their jobs.

House "progressive bloc" members leaped to defense of the group and denied the league as Communist. They charged the Dies committee with efforts to intimidate the government officials and employees and destroy their civil liberties.

The list of government employees, first announced as a "membership and mailing list," was said by Dies committee members to actually be a membership roll.

Moscow "Assumes" That Freighter Will Not Be Sailed To American Port After Being Removed From Internment In Murmansk

UNCLE SAM'S SAILORS STILL ABOARD

Spokesmen Of Both Nations Declare They Now Consider Case Closed; Goods On Steamer To Be Held As Contraband

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—The United States government has instructed American Ambassador to Moscow Laurence Steinhardt to demand that the Soviet government release the steamer City of Flint, Secretary of State Hull announced today.

The American ship was seized, apparently on the high seas by a German warship and taken to the Russian port of Murmansk.

The secretary of state said that the United States in demanding return of the vessel from Russia was standing on article 21 of the Hague Convention of 1907 which limits retention in neutral ports of seized vessels by reason of unseaworthiness or to obtain indispensable supplies. After these conditions have been remedied, Hull said the vessel must be released.

Steinhardt was instructed by the state department to inform the Soviet foreign office that the United States stands on its rights under this international law, the secretary said.

No reply on the demands had been received by the state department, Hull added.

BERLIN, Oct. 26—Soviet Russia today awarded the American freighter City of Flint to the German prize crew which captured her on the high seas.

The German government notified Alexander C. Kirk, American charge d'affaires, of the Russian decision.

The German prize crew, interned at Murmansk on the City of Flint's arrival, has been released.

The prize crew will be allowed to go aboard the freighter, which will then put to sea.

"It must be assumed," a spokesman said, "that the crew will not take her to America."

(Editor's note: This statement led to immediate assumption that the Germans would attempt to take the City of Flint to one of their own high seas ports. Under international law, competent authorities assert, a captured vessel may be taken to a neutral port only because of bad weather, damage to the ship or lack of provisions. As soon as this condition is remedied, the vessel must leave the neutral harbor, just as the City of Flint will now leave the neutral port of Murmansk, where she was taken by the German prize crew on the contention that through loss of her navigational equipment. The Red Star, official publication of the Soviet army, interpreted revisionist agitation as "active support by reactionary American circles to attempts of British and French imperialists to turn the Western European war into World War."

Killer Of Two In Getaway From Arizona Hospital; Persecution Claimed

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 26 — Winnie Ruth Judd, perpetrator of one of the most gruesome crimes in the history of the West — the dual slaying of her two best girl friends, whose bodies she dismembered and shipped to Los Angeles in trunks—today once more was the object of a vast search that extended through Arizona, New Mexico and southern California.

The "Blonde Tigress," twice-condemned to death for the murders of Hedvig Samuelson and Agnes Ann Lerol in October, 1931, escaped early yesterday from the Arizona state hospital where she had been confined as insane.

Now 34, and comely, Miss Judd was repeating the same sort of flight she made from the law in 1931 — fleeing alone, and once again declaring she was the victim of "persecution."

In 1931, after she shot and killed Miss Samuelson, a school teacher, and Miss Lerol, a nurse, dismembered their bodies and shipped them to Los Angeles in trunks, and was finally captured in Los Angeles. (Continued on Page Four)

Rural folk doubted if the rain would be very beneficial to pastures. Dry weather had burned them to the extent that it was doubtful if they would show any improvement. Field fires were one of the serious worries of county farmers. Fields were like tinder and farmers kept a constant watch over their farms for fires.

Fair and colder weather was forecast for late Thursday by the state weather bureau. Cloudy skies were predicted for Friday. The temperature varied only three degrees from Wednesday afternoon until Thursday morning. Highest recording Wednesday afternoon was 67 degrees. Lowest during the night was 64.

The last good rain in the county was reported on September 17. The measurement on that day amounted to .9 of an inch. No heavy showers had been reported since that time.

Circleville folk were broad smiles about the showers. They were pleased because the rains arrived this week and not last week during the annual Pumpkin Show.

Conservation officers were glad to see heavy rains drench the rural districts. The drought, drying up small streams and causing field fires, took a toll on fish and game.

NEW AUTOMATIC EQUIPMENT AIDS ELECTRIC PLANT

Shorter Interruptions In Service Provided If Trouble Is Found

ABOUT $20,000 Required

New 'Eye' Being Used To Turn Street Lights On And Off

New automatic equipment for greater improved service to customers of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company will be placed in operation at the West Mound Street substation within the next ten days, Charles Gilmore, manager, announced Thursday.

Installation of the new equipment has been in progress for the last 10 weeks. Cost of the improvement amounts to approximately $20,000. The new equipment transforms the substation from manual to automatic operation throughout.

The equipment includes automatic switches on the five commercial circuits carrying 2,300 volts each. In case of lightning, damage to a line or a short circuit the main switch feeding that line automatically opens. This starts a timing device in operation causing the switch to reset itself three times. In event the trouble remains on the line after the equipment makes three attempts to close the circuit, the switch is automatically locked out and it throws a relay that starts a bell ringing in the substation. Another relay lifts the receiver on the telephone and the telephone operator, hearing the bell in the substation notifies a company employee of the trouble.

Interruptions Shorter

With the old equipment the switches had to be reclosed manually causing longer interruptions in service. A large circuit breaker has been installed at the rear of the substation on the 66,000 volt line, protecting the entire substation from damage in the event trouble on the line supplying Circleville with current.

Another improvement in the substation is an electric eye installation to operate street lights. These lights were formerly operated manually. When there is a certain degree of darkness the eye automatically turns on the lights, reversing the operation in the morning. The electric eye is located on top of the substation.

Regulators Installed

Two more automatic regulators have been installed in the plant to regulate and give a more steady flow of current, preventing fluctuations on the lines caused by heavy and light use of current. The plant had been equipped with two regulators.

The men on duty at the substation at night will be largely watchmen and servicemen to answer trouble calls in the future as the human element has been removed from the operation of the plant to a large degree.

ASHVILLE

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 79

The Sadie Palm public sale Tuesday at the late Fred Palm home, North of South Bloomfield, had fine weather, large attendance, good bidders with fair prices prevailing. E. O. Bumgarner, auctioneer; Wayne Hoover, clerk. The local Lutheran Ladies Aid with its lunch stand had a clean sellout with neither soup nor hot dog left. Miss Palm, according to her friends, expects to make Ashville her home.

"Who you for and who you're against and why," is starting to be discussed in some quarters, now that the election is drawing closer each day. Next Tuesday a week, November 7, is the "big day" when some of our good citizens will be given "real jobs" to have and hold after the first of the new year. For all the offices of the village, with the lone exception of the clerk, there are contests, from the Mayor's place on through to the board of public affairs. And now we're telling you again: It is the duty of every Ashville village voter to learn the names of all who are to be elected to the several offices and assist in this election just ahead. Two years ago, 1937, the West precinct cast 272 ballots and the East 270, a total of 542 votes, so it is not likely that many more than this number will cast ballots on November 7. Maybe within the next couple of days we will be able to give, through someone who has a late poll, the exact number of voters in the village. Have heard no one predict who will be who after the ballots are counted and by how much. But we'll try to get on "the inside" of what is doing and be telling all about it, that is, of course, if we are not pledged to give a sure thing away.

Watch your step and do it fast, you Halloweeners, because there is a village ordinance, a brand new one, with real teeth in it now in the making and will be in force ready and waiting for you when the gates, steps, signs and everything loose, gets on the move. Under this new village law just passed and in force, it'll cost anywhere from $1 to $100 and costs to fool with the thing and get caught. So, now, "you kiddies," we've warned you and don't blame us if the goblins get you into the hoosegow or something—no nice little pumpkin show this year as in others. According to committee' announcements, the Halloween doings and carnival to be held out at the school auditorium Friday evening, promises to be a big success. Wide open to the public with everybody invited.

EUGENE CRITES ADDS TO HIS PROPERTY IN AMANDA

Eugene Crites has added a modern five-room apartment to the back of his property in Amanda. The property was formerly owned by Mrs. Ella Lape.

A carved corner china cupboard was installed in the dining room. A mirror reaching from the floor almost to the ceiling has been installed in the bedroom. The home will be occupied in the near future by Mr. Crites and Mr. and Mrs. Warrick Van Cleve of Stoutsville.

Mr. Crites has made many friends since moving to Amanda about two years ago. In addition to remodeling his business place and building the new apartment, Mr. Crites has built a modern seven-room home on the corner of High and School Streets in the village.

NEW AUTOMATIC EQUIPMENT AIDS ELECTRIC PLANT

Shorter Interruptions In Service Provided If Trouble Is Found

ABOUT $20,000 Required

New 'Eye' Being Used To Turn Street Lights On And Off

New automatic equipment for greater improved service to customers of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company will be placed in operation at the West Mound Street substation within the next ten days, Charles Gilmore, manager, announced Thursday.

Installation of the new equipment has been in progress for the last 10 weeks. Cost of the improvement amounts to approximately $20,000. The new equipment transforms the substation from manual to automatic operation throughout.

The equipment includes automatic switches on the five commercial circuits carrying 2,300 volts each. In case of lightning, damage to a line or a short circuit the main switch feeding that line automatically opens. This starts a timing device in operation causing the switch to reset itself three times. In event the trouble remains on the line after the equipment makes three attempts to close the circuit, the switch is automatically locked out and it throws a relay that starts a bell ringing in the substation. Another relay lifts the receiver on the telephone and the telephone operator, hearing the bell in the substation notifies a company employee of the trouble.

Interruptions Shorter

With the old equipment the switches had to be reclosed manually causing longer interruptions in service. A large circuit breaker has been installed at the rear of the substation on the 66,000 volt line, protecting the entire substation from damage in the event trouble on the line supplying Circleville with current.

Another improvement in the substation is an electric eye installation to operate street lights. These lights were formerly operated manually. When there is a certain degree of darkness the eye automatically turns on the lights, reversing the operation in the morning. The electric eye is located on top of the substation.

Regulators Installed

Two more automatic regulators have been installed in the plant to regulate and give a more steady flow of current, preventing fluctuations on the lines caused by heavy and light use of current. The plant had been equipped with two regulators.

The men on duty at the substation at night will be largely watchmen and servicemen to answer trouble calls in the future as the human element has been removed from the operation of the plant to a large degree.

More than $100,000 will be awarded to stockmen in cash prizes. The premiums will be spread over competition for 30 different breeds of cattle, horses, sheep and swine, which will total well over 12,000 head.

An unusually large showing of Canadian live stock is expected this year, officials of the show state, owing to the cancellation of the Fall Fairs in Canada this year. In recent years, all provinces of the Dominion have been strongly represented in both the livestock and crops divisions of the exposition.

Entries for the purebred and individual fat stock classes of the exposition will be accepted until November 1, he says; and for the International Grain and Hay Show, the largest annual showing of corn, small grain, seeds and hay in the country, exhibits may be entered until November 20.

Among the first entries to be received for this year's crops show are samples of wheat from Argentina and Australia, the latter consisting of first prize winning wheat from the Sidney agricultural show last Spring. It will be the first time that South America will be represented.

The Exposition will be staged in the huge International Amphitheatre, situated at the east entrance to the Chicago Stock Yards. It includes a central coliseum with seats for 7,500 and adjoining display areas encompassing six acres.

Circleville and rural workers for the annual roll call of the American Red Cross to be held from Armistice Day to November 30, were announced Thursday by Miss Agnes Butch, executive and home service secretary of the Pickaway County Chapter.

The quota for Pickaway County is 1,000 members. Earl A. Smith, Circleville attorney, is the roll call chairman. George E. Gerhardt, county prosecutor, is publicity chairman. In the last year the Pickaway County Chapter assisted in rehabilitating six families whose homes had been destroyed by fire and ten families in which illness had caused need for aid. In addition to this work the home service secretary complied with many requests for food and clothing. Food and transportation was supplied to ex-service men and their families and to civilians who were stranded in Circleville.

Ex-Service Families Aided

Service was given to ex-service men and their dependents with the result that compensation were restored and dependency granted. Social histories were furnished the Veterans' Administration in cases of wards of the administration. The chapter sponsored a first aid program and 40 adults were granted certificates for completion of the course.

Officers of the Pickaway County Chapter are Carl C. Leist, Circleville, chairman; Mrs. Mable Louis, New Holland, vice chairman; Mrs. A. W. Wiegand, Circleville, chapter secretary; Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker, Williamsport, treasurer, and Miss Butch, executive and home service secretary.

Circleville workers are Mrs. Lawrence Goeller, Mrs. George G. Corne, Mrs. Leslie Pontius, Miss Veronica Kuhns, Mrs. Frank Davis, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Max Friedman, Mrs. Karl Mason, Mrs. Adrian Yates, Miss Nelle Weldon, Miss Ruth Stout, Mrs. Paul Helwagen, Mrs. Harry Gard, Mrs. Tom Lake and Miss Ozella Hosler.

State to Correct Fatal Highway Near Lancaster

Cure for a serious traffic hazard on Route 33 over Brushy Fork south of Lancaster in Fairfield County, by the construction of a new bridge over the stream, and the partial straightening out of the roadway, is planned for this year by the Ohio department of highways.

Highway Director Robert S. Beightler announced today at Columbus that the site plan for the new structure is expected within a few days. The survey for the bridge has been completed, and the next step is for the bridge bureau of the highway department to determine the type of structure to replace the existing concrete bridge.

Colonel Beightler said that the new structure is included in the department's 1939 program. Eventually it is the present highway department's plan to make a complete new realignment for Route 33 in the vicinity of Brushy Fork, straightening out the roadway and thus doing away with a traffic menace that in recent months has claimed several lives.

Brushy Fork is almost at the Hocking-Fairfield county line, and the approach from Hocking County, is over a roadway that has been rendered safe, from an engineering point of view, for motorists. After entering Fairfield County, however, the highway twists and turns and makes motoring decidedly unsafe.

The department's plan for the future is to relocate Route 33 in this dangerous area, and span Brushy Fork with another bridge. The bridge that is to be erected will be of a width adequate to eliminate much of the traffic hazard, Colonel Beightler is reported to have said.

If an individual uses the eyes under poor lighting conditions for prolonged periods frequently, more nervous muscular tension is suffered than if the same person had been doing hard manual labor all day.

SMITH HEADS ROLL CALL

Much Beneficial Work Done In District Last Year, Secretary Reveals

Circleville and rural workers for the annual roll call of the American Red Cross to be held from Armistice Day to November 30, were announced Thursday by Miss Agnes Butch, executive and home service secretary of the Pickaway County Chapter.

The quota for Pickaway County is 1,000 members. Earl A. Smith, Circleville attorney, is the roll call chairman. George E. Gerhardt, county prosecutor, is publicity chairman. The solicitation of industrial firms will be in charge of Ned Groom. Russell Imbler and Earl Weaver will solicit the business district and Frank Fischer and George D. McDowell will be in charge of the program in the schools.

In the last year the Pickaway County Chapter assisted in rehabilitating six families whose homes had been destroyed by fire and ten families in which illness had caused need for aid. In addition to this work the home service secretary complied with many requests for food and clothing. Food and transportation was supplied to ex-service men and their families and to civilians who were stranded in Circleville.

Ex-Service Families Aided

Service was given to ex-service men and their dependents with the result that compensation was restored and dependency granted. Social histories were furnished the Veterans' Administration in cases of wards of the administration. The chapter sponsored a first aid program and 40 adults were granted certificates for completion of the course.

Officers of the Pickaway County Chapter are Carl C. Leist, Circleville, chairman; Mrs. Mable Louis, New Holland, vice chairman; Mrs. A. W. Wiegand, Circleville, chapter secretary; Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker, Williamsport, treasurer, and Miss Butch, executive and home service secretary.

Circleville workers are Mrs. Lawrence Goeller, Mrs. George G. Corne, Mrs. Leslie Pontius, Miss Veronica Kuhns, Mrs. Frank Davis, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Max Friedman, Mrs. Karl Mason, Mrs. Adrian Yates, Miss Nelle Weldon, Miss Ruth Stout, Mrs. Paul Helwag, Mrs. Harry Gard, Mrs. Tom Lake and Miss Ozella Hosler.

County Crew Listed

Those to conduct the drive in the county are E. A. Rigdon, Mrs. Hunsicker, Harry Margulis, G. A. Armstrong, Miss Martha Warner, Mrs. Leroy Hammack, Mrs. Louis, Mrs. J. B. Cromley, Mrs. Marvin Steeley, Mrs. Marie Walters, H. Brice Connel, A. Wendell Boyer, Pielgord, Hansen, George H. Broyles, Leslie Canup, Myron T. Johnson, Harold Strous, Ralph A. Francis, Carl D. 3,000 DEAD AND INJURED AFTER TWO ATTACKS

Several Hospital Trains Seen At Trier, Paris Advices Say

LONDON, Oct. 26—Three vital breaks in Germany's Westwall, through which French and British troops might plunge in a major offensive, have been found out by French ground and air "feelers" during the first few weeks of the war, it was learned in authoritative military quarters today.

Observers, however, believe the gaps will not be used during the winter, as neither side is expected to try a grand-scale offensive before spring makes fighting conditions more favorable.

For military reasons, it can be disclosed only that large gaps were found, where the Germans in their haste failed to complete portions of the westwall.

The Allies, for strategic reasons, have decided not to take advantage of these vulnerable points at the present time. Military authorities explained:

1—A winter offensive would be considered suicidal for either side.

2—Time favors the British and French, who still need to complete some preparations.

3—The Allies prefer to let Germany attack, expecting that the Reich will suffer huge losses in an offensive against the Maginot line or through Belgium and Holland this winter.

They predict a stalemate on both sides, so far as ground fighting is concerned, until spring, in spite of reports that Germany is bringing increasing pressure on the Maginot line.

However, the winter will see plenty of activity diplomatically, aerially, and at sea.

Freezing conditions already have been found at altitudes as low as 3000 feet over the Western Front, and this factor is expected to handicap aerial operations there until spring.

UNITED STATES FOREIGN TRADE IN MAJOR CLIMB

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—United States foreign trade boomed sharply in September—first month of the European war—with increases in both exports and imports, the Department of Commerce reported today.

Imports rose $14,000,000 over September, 1938, but a $42,000,000 increase in exports gave the United States a favorable trade balance of $107,112,000. This was nearly $29,000,000 higher than the September 1938 favorable balance.

Total exports for the month were $288,573,000, as compared with $246,335,000 for September, 1938, while imports rose from $167,592,000 in September 1938 to $181,461,000 for the same month this year.

OHIOAN OFFERS EYE FOR SALE TO ASSIST FAMILY

TROY, Oct. 26—Unable to find a job since he was laid off 15 months ago, Clyde Lowry, 45, today offered to sell one of his eyes for $10,000.

Lowry, who inserted an advertisement to that effect in Dayton newspapers, told interviewers he was dead in earnest and hoped the unusual offer would not be regarded as a joke.

"I have tramped the streets of Troy, Sidney, Dayton, Lima and Piqua, looking for work," he said, "but apparently no employer wants a workman of my age."

Lowry said he was sorely in need of funds to support his wife and year-old son. The savings accumulated while working for 16 years in a Troy industrial plant, are exhausted, he said.

He reiterated that he is ready to part with an eye to anyone who will give him $10,000 to rehabilitate his family.

McCrady said the radio was left in an alley between Franklin and Mouth Streets. The person finding it in the alley reported it to police.

GERMAN PRIZE CREW TO TAKE CITY OF FLINT

So far as is known in Berlin, Captain Joseph A. Gainard, master of the City of Flint, and the 41 American members of his own crew are still aboard the vessel in Murnansk harbor. What will be done with them is not yet known. Germany informed Kirk that after thorough examination of the City of Flint case, Soviet authorities decided that the ship had been taken to Murnansk harbor for repairs to its machinery and to correct deficiencies in her navigation charts which made the vessel "unseaworthy."

"Therefore, under international rules, the ship with its prize crew aboard must be allowed to proceed to sea after necessary aid has been given at Murnansk," Kirk was informed.

Word to this effect arrived in Berlin from Moscow during the morning, coincident with announcement that the German prize crew was no longer under detention. Questioned as to whether Moscow and Berlin now consider the case settled, authentic quarters replied in the affirmative.

Not to America

Then asked whether there was any likelihood that the vessel would be allowed to proceed to America, a spokesman declared: "It must be assumed that since the ship was taken to Murnansk by a German prize crew, it will also leave Murnansk with the same prize crew aboard."

"It must be assumed also that this crew will not take her to America."

The Russian decision, it was pointed out in Berlin, does not affect the question of contraband, which Germany charges the City of Flint was carrying. This matter will now fall under the jurisdiction of the German prize court at Hamburg.

Through the incident, it was emphasized, Germany has abided rigorously by the receipts of international law, including those governing halt and search on the high seas.

It was authoritatively indicated that the Nazi pocket battleship Deutschland was the vessel which captured the City of Flint. German quarters cited this as proof of Germany's successful operations on the high seas despite the British blockade and the overwhelming superiority of British naval tonnage.

While no one would predict the ultimate fate of Captain Gainard and his crew, it was emphasized in Berlin that all the Americans are safe and presumably well.

WALLACE URGES F. D.'S ELECTION FOR THIRD TIME

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26 —Basing his statement on the European war situation, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today declared it is necessary to abandon two-term tradition and re-elect President Roosevelt in 1940.

In the San Francisco bay region to dedicate a $1,000,000 agriculture research laboratory at Albany and address a conference of western governors, Wallace stated:

"The outbreak of the war has made it clear the President's talents and training are necessary to steer the country to a safe harbor in its domestic and foreign relations."

"The President's experience and his foreign contacts, extending over 45 years in public and private life, put him in an exceptionally good position to keep abreast of European developments."

Wallace thus made it known he would decline possible nomination to the presidency by the Democratic party if President Roosevelt agrees to run again.

Effects of the war on American agricultural exports also was pointed out by Wallace. He said increased shipments of American pork and lard have especially increased while exports of fruits and tobaccos have dwindled.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Adkins said Patrick, driving south, applied his brakes when a car in front of him stopped. The Patrick car skidded into the Hutchison car, parked on the street. The left rear fender on the Hutchison car and the front of the Patrick car were damaged.

West Hunts Winnie Judd Second Time

Angeles, "the tigress" claimed she killed her two roommates because they "were out to get me."

Persecuted, She Claims

Today, in possession of Gov. Robert Jones of Arizona, now en route to San Francisco, is a letter from Winnie in which she claimed she was "persecuted" at the hospital—her only reason, she said, for escaping.

Like a scared rabbit, she fled into the darkness of the Arizona desert shortly after midnight Wednesday after visiting her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Harvey McKinnell both of whom were unable to dissuade their hysterical daughter from her plans to become a fugitive.

They begged her, they said, to return to the hospital, but she told them she wanted to see her husband, Dr. W. C. Judd, a patient in the veterans' hospital at Sawtelle, Cal., near Los Angeles. She had also written to Governor Jones that she planned to visit Dr. Judd. Phoenix authorities asked Los Angeles and all southern California officers to search for the demented slayer in the belief she would attempt to reach Los Angeles.

In Sawtelle, meanwhile, Dr. Judd issued through the press a dramatic plea to Winnie Ruth to surrender, and at the same time declared he had no knowledge of her escape plot.

(In 1931, it was largely through the doctor's efforts that Mrs. Judd was induced to surrender.)

Escape Not Discovered

Escape of the "blonde tigress" was not discovered for nearly 12 hours because of her clever ruse. She masked her flight by stuffing a "dummy" into her bed. Matrons in her ward passed by her room and admitted they were fooled by the dummy, made up of bottles, boxes, pillows and towels. It was not until 11:30 a. m. yesterday that her escape was disclosed.

Mrs. Judd carried through her astonishing plan, she revealed in her letter to Governor Jones, because she believed she was being persecuted by Dr. Louis J. Saxe, superintendent of the hospital.

She promised to surrender after seeing her husband, "on condition that you promise me Dr. Saxe will be forced to leave me alone."

Governor Jones, who was in personal charge of the search, denied Winnie Ruth's charges she had been ill-treated.

"Mrs. Judd has had good treatment but during the last 18 months she has come to believe she was being persecuted and her condition became worse by degrees."

Dr. Saxe is on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

BUCKS TO HAVE EDGE IN WEIGHT OVER INVADERS

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—Fair weather prevailing, more than 55,000 football fans will witness Saturday's all-important pigskin battle between Ohio State and Cornell—both possible contenders for the national championship crown.

Generally called the "game of the day," the encounter will bring to Columbus a Cornell team that hasn't really been tested. In defeating Syracuse, Princeton and Penn State, the Big Red machine just coasted, keeping its "tight moment" plays undercover and away from the prying eyes of Ohio State scouts.

Cornell will not alone be trying to maintain its undefeated record, but as well, atone for the 40-to-0 walloping inflicted by Michigan the last time the Ithacans invaded the Midwest.

Recognized as the star of the Cornell eleven is Hal McCullough, slight 166-pound halfback who is hard to stop once he penetrates the secondary. McCullough has sparked the Big Red victory in its three previous tilts. The Cornell backfield averages about 178 pounds in weight and the line 190—much lighter than State in either respects.

Meanwhile, on the Ohio State side, it appeared that Sophomores Jack Stephenson and Thornton Dixon would line up as starters at the tackle berths. Stephenson, who played a great game against Minnesota, would replace the injured Charlie Maag while Dixon would fill the place left vacant by Jim Daniell, also on the injured list.

ment be a tie, the delicate question would be up to Vice President Garner to decide. President Roosevelt has told his leaders he does not want the munitions control board amendment adopted because he believes it is a usurpation of executive authority.

Still another Clark move scheduled today was calculated to embarrass an administration fighting for speedy passage of the embargo repeal bill. The Missourian said he intended to inquire on the senate floor whether Great Britain has "seized" any American merchant ships carrying contraband.

"In the World War," he said, "we had to lodge formal complaints with Great Britain for many such seizures. I'm sure there must have already been British seizures of American ships since this war started, but all we've heard about was the American boat seized by the Germans."

3,000 DEAD AND INJURED AFTER TWO ATTACKS

Several Hospital Trains Seen At Trier, Paris
Advices Say

der artillery and machine gun fire.
"There was no worth-while activity elsewhere."

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Three vital breaks in Germany's Westwall, through which French and British troops might plunge in a major offensive, have been found out by French ground and air "feelers" during the first few weeks of the war, it was learned in authoritative military quarters today.
Observers, however, believe the gaps will not be used during the winter, as neither side is expected to try a grand-scale offensive before spring makes fighting conditions more favorable.

For military reasons, it can be disclosed only that large gaps were found, where the Germans in their haste failed to complete portions of the westwall.
The Allies, for strategic reasons, have decided not to take advantage of these vulnerable points at the present time. Military authorities explained:

1—A winter offensive would be considered suicidal for either side.
2—Time favors the British and French, who still need to complete some preparations.

3—The Allies prefer to let Germany attack, expecting that the Reich will suffer huge losses in an offensive against the Maginot line or through Belgium and Holland this winter.

They predict a stalemate on both sides, so far as ground fighting is concerned, until spring, in spite of reports that Germany is bringing increasing pressure on the Maginot line.
However, the winter will see plenty of activity diplomatically, aerially, and at sea.

Freezing conditions already have been found at altitudes as low as 3000 feet over the Western Front, and this factor is expected to handicap aerial operations there until spring.

UNITED STATES FOREIGN TRADE IN MAJOR CLIMB

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—United States foreign trade boomed sharply in September—first month of the European war—with increases in both exports and imports, the Department of Commerce reported today.

Imports rose $14,000,000 over September, 1938, but a $42,000,000 increase in exports gave the United States a favorable trade balance of $107,112,000. This was nearly $29,000,000 higher than the September 1938 favorable balance.
Total exports for the month were $288,573,000, as compared with $246,335,000 for September, 1938, while imports rose from $167,582,000 in September 1938 to $181,461,000 for the same month this year.

OHIOAN OFFERS EYE FOR SALE TO ASSIST FAMILY

TROY, Oct. 26.—Unable to find a job since he was laid off 15 months ago, Clyde Lowry, 45, today offered to sell one of his eyes for $10,000.

Lowry, who inserted an advertisement to that effect in Dayton newspapers, told interviewers he was dead in earnest and hoped the unusual offer would not be regarded as a joke.

"I have tramped the streets of Troy, Sidney, Dayton, Lima and Piqua, looking for work," he said, "but apparently no employer wants a workman of my age."

Lowry said he was sorely in need of funds to support his wife and year-old son. The savings accumulated while working for 16 years in a Troy industrial plant, are exhausted, he said.

He reiterated that he is ready to part with an eye to anyone who will give him $10,000 to rehabilitate his family.

WALLACE URGES F. D.'S ELECTION FOR THIRD TIME

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26.—Basing his statement on the European war situation, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today declared it is necessary to abandon two-term tradition and re-elect President Roosevelt in 1940.

In the San Francisco bay region to dedicate a $1,000,000 agricultural research laboratory at Albany and address a conference of western governors, Wallace stated:

"The outbreak of the war has made it clear the President's talents and training are necessary to steer the country to a safe harbor in its domestic and foreign relations."

"The President's experience and his foreign contacts, extending over 45 years in public and private life, put him in an exceptionally good position to keep abreast of European developments."

Wallace thus made it known he would decline possible nomination to the presidency by the Democratic party if President Roosevelt agrees to run again.

Effects of the war on American agricultural exports also was pointed out by Wallace. He said increased shipments of American pork and lard have especially increased while exports of fruits and tobaccos have dwindled.

TWO CARS HAVE SLIGHT DAMAGE IN COLLISION

Autos of Eldon Hutchison, 1700 Morey Avenue, Hamilton, and Homer Patrick, Circleville Route 2, were slightly damaged at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday in an accident on North Court Street near Northridge Road.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Adkins said Patrick, driving south, applied his brakes when a car in front of him stopped. The Patrick car skidded into the Hutchison car, parked on the street. The left rear fender on the Hutchison car and the front of the Patrick car were damaged.

RESTAURANT MAN FINED

Pete Mernekakis, Athens, paid fines amounting to $50 and costs in B. T. Hedges' justice of peace court Wednesday on charges of selling tangible personal property at retail in August without a license and failure to collect sales tax. Authorities said Mernekakis operated an East Main Street restaurant for a brief period.

West Hunts Winnie Judd Second Time

Angeles, "the tigress" claimed she killed her two roommates because they "were out to get me."

Persecuted, She Claims

Today, in possession of Gov. Robert Jones of Arizona, now en route to San Francisco, is a letter from Winnie in which she claimed she was "persecuted" at the hospital—her only reason, she said, for escaping.

Like a scared rabbit, she fled into the darkness of the Arizona desert shortly after midnight Wednesday after visiting her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Harvey McKinnell both of whom were unable to dissuade their hysterical daughter from her plans to become a fugitive.

They begged her, they said, to return to the hospital, but she told them she wanted to see her husband, Dr. W. C. Judd, a patient in the veterans' hospital at Sawtelle, Cal., near Los Angeles. She had also written to Governor Jones that she planned to visit Dr. Judd. Phoenix authorities asked Los Angeles and all southern California officers to search for the demented slayer in the belief she would attempt to reach Los Angeles.

In Sawtelle, meanwhile, Dr. Judd issued through the press a dramatic plea to Winnie Ruth to surrender, and at the same time declared he had no knowledge of her escape plot.

(In 1931, it was largely through the doctor's efforts that Mrs. Judd was induced to surrender.)

Escape Not Discovered

Escape of the "blonde tigress" was not discovered for nearly 12 hours because of her clever ruse. She masked her flight by stuffing a "dummy" into her bed. Matrons in her ward passed by her room and admitted they were fooled by the dummy, made up of bottles, boxes, pillows and towels. It was not until 11:30 a. m. yesterday that her escape was disclosed.

Mrs. Judd carried through her astonishing plan, she revealed in her letter to Governor Jones, because she believed she was being persecuted by Dr. Louis J. Saxe, superintendent of the hospital. She promised to surrender after seeing her husband, "on condition that you promise me Dr. Saxe will be forced to leave me alone."

Governor Jones, who was in personal charge of the search, denied Winnie Ruth's charges she had been ill-treated.

"Mrs. Judd has had good treatment but during the last 18 months she has come to believe she was being persecuted and her condition became worse by degrees."

Dr. Saxe is on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

BUCKS TO HAVE EDGE IN WEIGHT OVER INVADERS

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26.—Fair weather prevailing, more than 55,000 football fans will witness Saturday's all-important pigskin battle between Ohio State and Cornell—both possible contenders for the national championship crown.

Generally called the "game of the day," the encounter will bring to Columbus a Cornell team that hasn't really been tested. In defeating Syracuse, Princeton and Penn State, the Big Red machine just coasted, keeping its "tight moment" plays undercover and away from the prying eyes of Ohio State scouts.

Cornell will not alone be trying to maintain its undefeated record, but as well, atone for the 40-to-0 walloping inflicted by Michigan the last time the Ithacans invaded the Midwest.

Recognized as the star of the Cornell eleven is Hal McCullough, slight 166-pound halfback who is hard to stop once he penetrates the secondary. McCullough has sparked the Big Red victory in its three previous tilts. The Cornell backfield averages about 178 pounds in weight and the line 190—much lighter than State in either respects.

Meanwhile, on the Ohio State side, it appeared that Sophomores Jack Stephenson and Thornton Dixon would line up as starters at the tackle berths. Stephenson, who played a great game against Minnesota, would replace the injured Charlie Maag while Dixon would fill the place left vacant by Jim Daniell, also on the injured list.

Still another Clark move scheduled today was calculated to embarrass an administration fighting for speedy passage of the embargo repeal bill. The Missourian said he intended to inquire on the senate floor whether Great Britain has "seized" any American merchant ships carrying contraband.

"In the World War," he said, "we had to lodge formal com-

Relief Problem Becoming More Grave In State, Union Men Say

CONFERENCE ORDERED

Industrial Cities Unable To Obtain Funds To Assist Needy

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—A special session of the legislature is the only solution to the relief problem in Ohio's industrial cities, a spokesman for the Ohio Federation of Labor declared today.

This statement came as officials of five City Central Labor bodies (A. F. of L.) met in Columbus to formulate a stand on a special session, which Governor Bricker twice has indicated he would not call.

Outcome of the meeting between A. F. of L. officials of the larger industrial cities was expected to be a personal plea from the federation, which supported Bricker in his campaign last year, for a special session.

One official, who requested his name not be used, went so far as to predict a special session either early in November or by the first of January.

Called By Lyden

Today's meeting was called by Michael J. Lyden, Youngstown, president of the Ohio A. F. of L. organization, after Thomas J. Donnelly, secretary-treasurer and legislative representative of the labor group, urged that "something be done to keep the larger cities unemployed from starving."

"The main difficulty," Donnelly said, "appears to be the inability of our industrial cities to obtain funds with which to match state relief monies as provided by the act passed during the last session of the legislature."

"Toledo ran out of funds in the middle of September. Similar prospects face other large industrial cities."

It all goes back to the big problem of distributing tax receipts, Donnelly added.

"It has always been my opinion," he declared, "that large municipalities do not receive their proper share of tax receipts. This probably can never be corrected entirely."

Reimbursements by the state to local relief sub-divisions for expenditures represented 32.7 percent of the total in August and 31.1 percent in September. Officials of the state welfare department, which administers the relief matching provision, are of the opinion that when the state's contribution is boosted from $750,000 to $1,000,000 in November, a true 50-50 matching will prevail.

Many Dire Cases

A report to the state federation from the Toledo central labor union stated that there are at least 25,000 dire cases there "that do not receive food, shelter, fuel and clothing" since the city discontinued giving relief orders Sept. 15.

The state federation will "leave no stone unturned" in an effort to find a solution to the cities relief problem, Donnelly stated.

Columbus probably will face a relief crisis before the first of the year in the opinion of John C. Getreu, president of the Columbus federation of labor. He refused to say what position the city labor group would take on the special session question.

'LIFER' GRILLED HAMILTON MAN IN GAMBLING AT STATE'S PRISON AS MURDERER

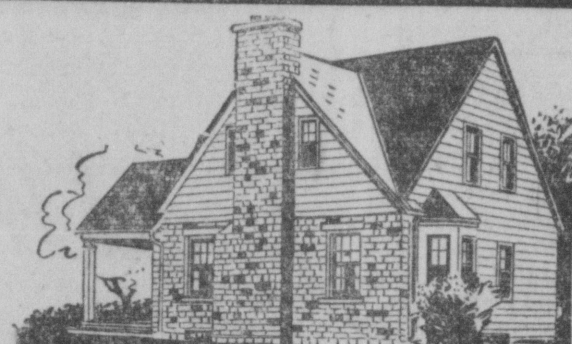

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26 — A 65-year-old life-term convict at Ohio Penitentiary was to be questioned today by Warden Frank D. Henderson regarding Irish Sweepstakes and lottery tickets found on his person after a general "shake-down" of prisoners.

The convict, Frank Voegtly, sentenced for second degree murder from Monroe County in 1930, was locked in solitary confinement and his privileges as a trusty and honor prisoner were taken away, Henderson said.

Voegtly ran errands across the street to the prison barns and it was there, the warden believed, that he met his "pick-up" man. No "numbers slips" were found in the shakedown, and Henderson said the numbers racket no longer flourished in the institution, although a constant vigil must be maintained to prevent it.

INDUSTRIAL PREPARATION

The semi-dictatorial super-government the Army has devised to run the country in case of war, still is only a paper plan. Congressional action is necessary to put it into effect.

Meanwhile one key feature of the plan already has been set in motion—with full congressional approval. This is the groundwork for mobilizing the nation's industry for war production. Few, except insiders, realize the extent of these preparations.

Today, more than 10,000 plants have secret orders for military products, and another 10,000 are being surveyed for the same purpose. In addition, the War Department has an index of thousands of other factories that could be used in a pinch.

To insure maximum speed and efficiency, the Army has decentralized its procurement machine into twelve "concentration centers" in strategic cities—New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Hartford, Conn., Schenectady, N. Y., Cincinnati, Bethlehem, Pa., Atlanta, Birmingham, Chicago, San Francisco, and Seattle. These centers are under the command of picked Army officers whose special job it is to be minutely acquainted with the "war load" of every factory. To do this they maintain a close check on the inventories, financial status and equipment of each firm.

TEN BILLION DOLLARS

An idea of the scope of military production is given by the fact that some 70,000 separate items are required to put a wartime army in the field. Of these 70,000 about 3,700 items are not normally made by private concerns, while 55 items are totally unavailable. That is, they cannot be profitably produced.

To overcome this obstacle, Congress voted the Army $16,500,000 to subsidize plants with "educational orders", and last year $2,500,000 was spent for this purpose.

The total of war orders in the safes of the 10,000 plants constituting the Army's "first line" of industrial mobilization is a military secret. But it can be stated definitely that the orders total not less than $10,000,000,000.

In other words, ten billion dollars would be the minimum industrial cost of a major war in the first year.

PLUGS INTO SWORDS

Toughest problem facing the Army was how to convert ordinary plant equipment into machinery for military production. Here is how it was worked out:

Factories making farm implements will produce shells, combat wagons and gun carriages.

Factories making boats will make pontoon bridges; adding machine factories will make automatic pistols; vacuum cleaner factories will turn to gas masks; printing presses to howitzer parts; and automobile plants will make machine guns, tanks, airplanes, and motors of all kinds.

Finally, factories making rails, wire products, pipe fittings and pine will produce shells, hand grenades, bombs and torpedoes.

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, to ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

A Balanced Budget GATHERS NO LOSS

We told a friend the other day, "Figure up all your bills and debts; don't miss any. We'll arrange a small-payment loan for you to cover all your needs... bills, clothes and winter supplies. Later on you can start repaying your loan a little at a time out of each pay check. A few dollars a month will do. And you'll soon find yourself better off than you've been in years."

How does the idea strike you?

INDUSTRIAL PREPARATION

The semi-dictatorial super-government the Army has devised to run the country in case of war, still is only a paper plan. Congressional action is necessary to put it into effect.

Meanwhile one key feature of the plan already has been set in motion—with full congressional approval. This is the groundwork for mobilizing the nation's industry for war production. Few, except insiders, realize the extent of these preparations.

Today, more than 10,000 plants have secret orders for military products, and another 10,000 are being surveyed for the same purpose. In addition, the War Department has an index of thousands of other factories that could be used in a pinch.

To insure maximum speed and efficiency, the Army has decentralized its procurement machine into twelve "concentration centers" in strategic cities — New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Hartford, Conn., Schenectady, N. Y., Cincinnati, Bethlehem, Pa., Atlanta, Birmingham, Chicago, San Francisco, and Seattle. These centers are under the command of picked Army officers whose special job it is to be minutely acquainted with the "war load" of every factory. To do this they maintain a close check on the inventories, financial status and equipment of each firm.

TEN BILLION DOLLARS

An idea of the scope of military production is given by the fact that some 70,000 separate items are required to put a wartime army in the field. Of these 70,000 about 3,700 items are not normally made by private concerns, while 55 items are totally unavailable. That is, they cannot be profitably produced.

To overcome this obstacle, Congress voted the Army $16,500,000 to subsidize plants with "educational orders", and last year $2,500,000 was spent for this purpose.

The total of war orders in the safes of the 10,000 plants constituting the Army's "first line" of industrial mobilization is a military secret. But it can be stated definitely that the orders total not less than $10,000,000,000.

In other words, ten billion dollars would be the minimum industrial cost of a major war in the first year.

PLOUGHS INTO SWORDS

Toughest problem facing the Army was how to convert ordinary plant equipment into machinery for military production. Here is how it was worked out:

Factories making farm implements will produce shells, combat wagons and gun carriages.

Factories making boats will make pontoon bridges; adding machine factories will make automatic pistols; vacuum cleaner factories will turn to gas masks; printing presses to howitzer parts; and automobile plants will make machine guns, tanks, airplanes, and motors of all kinds.

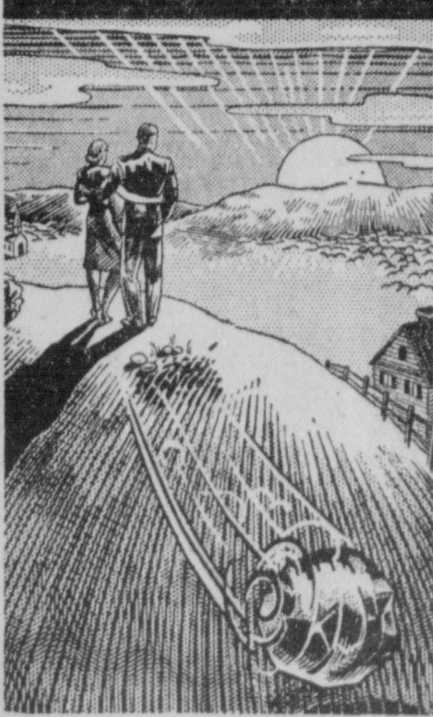

Finally, factories making rails, wire products, pipe fittings and pine will produce shells, hand grenades, bombs and torpedoes.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, to ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

A Balanced Budget GATHERS NO LOSS

We told a friend the other day, "figure up all your bills and debts; don't miss any. We'll arrange a small-payment loan for you to cover all your needs . . . bills, clothes and winter supplies. Later on you can start repaying your loan a little at a time out of each pay check. A few dollars a month will do. And you'll soon find yourself better off than you've been in years."

How does the idea strike you?

A CRUEL JOKE

THE old age pension and tax amendments to the state constitution, sponsored by the Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow of Cincinnati, would perpetrate a cruel practical joke on the aged folk of Ohio if approved by voters on November 7.

The amendments paint a glowing picture to the folk over 60 years of age that six months after the adoption of the amendments they could start drawing their pensions of $50 a month for single persons and $80 a month for married couples.

The above promise is indeed a worthy one if it could be fulfilled. That is where the cruel deception enters. That is where the entire story has not been told to the aged by persons supporting the unworkable Bigelow plan. Instead of paying the increased pensions in six months after adoption at least a year and probably two years would elapse before any benefits could be realized and then no one can tell whether the amount will be $50 a month or less than the amount now received by the aged from the state and federal government.

Like any other "ham and egg" scheme conceived to appeal to special groups the Bigelow plan requires money to operate. This money can be raised only through additional taxes on real estate and incomes. Take the real estate tax first. It could not be placed on the county tax duplicate this year in time for collection in 1940.

Since most county treasurers keep their books open until late April or May, the collection of the first half of the tax could not be completed until the spring of 1941, a year after the first applications were made.

The state income tax provided for in the Bigelow amendment could not be made to apply to 1939 income, since the Constitution already provides that taxes may not be made retroactive.

The state income tax for 1940, therefore could not be computed until the 1940 federal income taxes had been paid, which would mean that the state assessment would not be collected until late in 1941.

There is even a serious legal question as to whether any of the revenue from the proposed Bigelow state income tax could be collected before 1942.

At any rate it would be at least a year after the pensions became payable before the Bigelow taxes would raise any money to pay them.

There is, moreover, a possibility that the adoption of the Bigelow amendment automatically would have the effect of repealing the present old-age pension law.

The Bigelow amendment provides specifically that all provisions of the law and Constitution in conflict with the amendment would be superseded.

Legal authorities argue that this language would render the present old-age

HENRY WALLACE LACKS "OOMPH"

WASHINGTON—For a long time Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace hopefully has preened himself as a promising presidential candidate. What Franklin Roosevelt privately thinks of him in that light was disclosed to Senator Guy Gillette when the Iowan went to the White House to discuss neutrality.

As Gillette rose to go, the President observed that he had been thinking about Iowa's delegation to the convention next year, and it seemed to him that the wisest course would be to have it go uninstructed.

Gillette, who has publicly declared himself against a third term, did not rise to the broad hint. Quietly but firmly he demurred:

"I'm not so sure about that, Mr. President. I've always felt that the Iowa delegation ought to be instructed for Henry Wallace."

"Henry is a grand person, a grand person," Roosevelt replied. "There is no question about that, and no one is fonder of him than I am. But you know as well as I do, Guy, that Henry just hasn't got 'it.'"

Gillette admitted this, but persisted in his stand. But after further discussion, during which Roosevelt repeated his contention that Wallace lacked political oomph, Gillette did give a little ground.

"Perhaps," he concluded, "the delegation shouldn't be pledged wholly to Henry. But I do think it should be at least instructed to the extent of giving him a complimentary ballot or two."

"WHAT THE 'ELL" WINCHELL

Illustrative of the unfair manner in which the Dies Committee is used as a sounding-board to blast reputable characters was the recent crack which Bundleader Fritz Kuhn took at Walter Winchell.

Winchell's real name, according to Kuhn, is "Lipschitz."

Winchell's original name actually was "Winchel." Asked why he added the extra "l", the famous columnist once wisecracked: "What the 'ell'?"

SHORT WHIRLS

A new low in wage-hour enforcement was recorded by Federal Judge Bascom S. Beaver when he fined the Camilla Hosiery Mills of Camilla, Ga. (home town (Continued on Page Five) pension law ineffective, because the Bigelow amendment would conflict with it.

If this argument is correct, the 120,000 old-age pensioners who now draw pensions from the state would lose their pensions six months after the adoption of the Bigelow amendment.

They, too, would have to wait at least a year before there would be any money available to pay the pensions, in the opinion of legal authorities.

Then what would they receive? No Bigelow plan advocate can answer the question. The only thing they can be sure of is that they would lose their present pensions and assist in bankrupting the state if they are foolish enough to vote for the amendments. The aged residents of Ohio are too clear-minded to be deceived by any such ruinous Bigelow schemes.

You'd think, from the way some young people seem to feel about it, that the crowning glory of this new age is the jitterbug championship.

Shadow Over Hill House

By ELLIOTT FILLION

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY

AS I SWUNG open the door and bounced out into the hall, Coral sprang away from Mrs. Peake's door. If ever guilt was written on a woman's face, it was on hers!

Anger burned in my blood like a hot flame. I stalked down the hall and confronted her. Her lips curled sarcastically, and I was so furious I could have struck her in the face.

"What are you doing here?" I demanded.

"Just what business is that of yours?" she flung back at me. "You're getting altogether above yourself, Miss Gordon—don't, taking me to task for anything I do HERE. I am engaged to Dr. Peake, as you know, and this is HIS house. I have a right to."

Her face changed. She shrank back for an instant, then boldly stepped forward. The rage faded from her face, a placating expression crept over it. The flame in her blazing eyes softened to a dewy light. That woman could turn on the tear tap at will.

I cast one swift glance backward over my shoulder. Neal was standing at the head of the stairs facing us. His expression was a peculiar one. It baffled diagnosis. His eyes watched us through narrowed lids. "The fat's in the fire now for fair," I muttered to myself. "Here's where little Sally gets thrown out on her own."

"Oh, Neal," wailed Coral. "Miss Gordon's accusing me of—"

"I didn't accuse you of anything," I cut in furiously. "I merely want to know what you were doing sneaking down this hall. I found her in front of your mother's door," I said to Neal. If I were going out over this, I was going out with colors flying. I wasn't going to pull one single punch because he was fool enough to believe in her.

His brown eyes bored deeply into mine. What he saw there must have satisfied him that I was speaking the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, as they say in court. He turned to her. His face was grim and hard.

"What WERE you doing up here?" The words were curt and cold.

She slipped her arm under his and pressed her shining black head against his shoulder.

"Oh, Neal," she sobbed. "What a way to talk to me. Are you going to take her word before mine?"

Neal stepped back and released his arm from her grasp. "I'm not taking anyone's word for anything," he said sternly. "I am asking you what you were doing up here?"

She cast swift glances from Neal to me. "I came up to—to to wash my hands."

"A likely story! I flung at her. "There's a washroom off the lounge and a bathroom connected with your room. Why come up here?"

At my retort her injured appearance faded. Fury and hatred flamed in her eyes. Neal received the first shock of her wrath.

"You stand there like a fool," she stormed, "and allow her to speak to me like this. What right has she to question me? As far as that goes, what right has she to question me either? I'm your fiancée, why should anyone question me if I go from one room to another in your house?"

Poor Neal! He seemed momentarily stunned by the suddenness of her attack.

"Well," she snarled at him, "am I to be taken to task by HER every time I put my head out of my room?"

"Listen, Coral," Neal found his voice—a voice I would hate to have him use to me. "I have told you before that I do not know if this house is to be mine or not. I don't care if it is or isn't, although you seem to. Until we know, you have no more right here than any other of the guests."

"What about HER?" That HER relegated me to the dust under her feet.

"Josie has asked Miss Gordon to run the house for a time. That has nothing to do with you."

"Well, I like that," she ranted. "Nothing to do with me! Let me tell you, big boy, if you care anything about me, you'd better fix it so this house is yours. I'm not marrying a pauper."

"Just what business is that of yours?" Coral flung back at me.

He flushed, then paled. "You almost compel me to hope the house is not mine." He strode away, leaving her staring after him.

It was my turn, and I took full advantage of it. I grabbed her arm and yanked her around to face me.

"From now on I'm boss here, and don't you forget it," I hurled at her. "And the next time I find you any place where you have no right to be, I'll have Captain Lancy lock you in your room. He'll do it if I ask him to, so watch your step. Now get downstairs where you belong."

And believe it or not, she went without another word. That she did made me more suspicious of her than before. I opened the door into Mrs. Peake's room. As far as I could see, nothing had been disturbed.

I came out, closed the door and started down the hall. Then a thought came to me. I went back, locked the door and took the key. The door could probably be easily opened, it was just an ordinary lock, but at least an intruder would be more careful, for he could not know if the room were occupied or not.

I started down the stairs to the lounge and, hearing a step, turned to look back. Josie was at the head of the stairs.

"I thought you were in the village," I said surprisedly.

"Neal had to have the deed to the lot—We came back for it. It was in the file in my study." Her voice was piteous.

I hated to tell her my news, but I must.

"Are you going out again?" I asked as we descended the stairs side by side.

"No, I'm too tired. Neal told me to stay and rest. He will attend to everything." Her breath caught on a sob.

"Then sit down here with me, Josie." I drew her to one of the davenport and held her cold hand in mine as I laid the key of her room in her lap and told her the story. To my utter amazement she began to cry; not loudly, but with a hopeless helplessness which cut me to the heart.

"Oh, Sally," she cried, "to think how I misjudged you!"

"Misjudged me! What on earth do you mean?"

"I saw you lock mother's door and I thought—I can't tell you what I thought—but I was afraid—I knew what she had thought and what she could not now bear to say. She had thought it was I, not Coral, who was at the bottom of the Hill House mystery."

"Josie," I said gently, "I don't blame you for thinking anything at all if you saw me take that key. But Neal knows that what I have told you is the truth. He doesn't know about my locking the door. I thought of that after I was alone. Now forget everything you THOUGHT and remember that I am your friend and that anything I can do for you I will gladly do."

"And for Neal," she said softly. Once more I stared at her. Her words seemed full of some meaning I could not catch. It was impossible for her to know—

"You love him, don't you, Sally? I wish you could be my sister, but Coral has him under her thumb."

"How did you know, Josie?" I asked. I felt dazed that she had penetrated the secret I had known only such a short time.

"I think I've known it as long as you have, Sally. Don't be sorry I know. It shall always be our secret."

I wasn't exactly sorry, but I was bewildered. I glanced at her. She looked so frail and ill, I rose to my feet.

"It's all right," I said, "but let's not talk about it. I'm going to tuck you into bed. You are completely worn out."

I assisted her up the stairs and into bed. Then I went for some hot milk and sat beside her until she went to sleep. I would not let her get up again that night, and in the morning she did seem stronger.

I dreaded the day, and it was fully as bad as I anticipated. When we returned from the cemetery, Mrs. Peake's lawyer, a Mr. Banbury, was waiting for us. He insisted on reading Mrs. Peake's will at once and, determined, led the way to the office where Captain Lancy and Chief Forrest were waiting.

Neal led the way with Coral flanking by his side as though she had every right in the world to be there. And as his fiancée I suppose she had, but nothing could make me believe that her interest was not for Hill House instead of for Neal.

I was turning to go up the stairs to our room when Josie called me.

"Sally, I want you with me." Her tone was imperious.

Coral sniffed disdainfully as I entered the room. She was all in white, but it gave the impression of festive array. Her black hair in startling contrast to her white hat and her vivid red lips, the only spot of color about her, in some inexplicable way made her entirely out of place in that mournful setting.

Mr. Banbury waited for us to be seated; then with a great rustling of papers and a dry rasp clearing of his throat, he began to read.

Rabies Remains A Real Menace

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Is it true, as I have read, that there is no danger or no such thing as hydrophobia in the United States?

It is decidedly not true and such statements are dangerous and misleading. I happen to have the figures for the state of Indiana before me, and they entirely disprove the idea. From 1926 to 1938 there were

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

11,478 animal heads examined in Indiana, and 6,172 were found to have Negri bodies which indicate rabies. These animals bit or otherwise exposed 7,659 persons. Hydrophobia developed in 40 of these human beings. All died.

Horrible Disease

Hydrophobia, or rabies, is such a horrible disease, invariably fatal, that every possible precaution should be used to prevent it. The only treatment we have is the Pasteur treatment.

As is well known, rabies may not appear until some time after the bite. The shortest period noted in this Indiana series was 18 days between the bite and the onset of symptoms. The sooner the treatment is given after exposure, the better. One of the Indiana cases developed rabies after receiving the Pasteur treatment, but the treatment was not begun until the nineteenth day after exposure.

Is there any real danger in the common drinking glass? Certainly. Mumps, tuberculosis, measles, diphtheria, influenza, the common cold, scarlet fever, whooping cough, trench mouth and pneumonia are diseases listed by Dr. M. J. Roscnau (Preventive Medicine and Hygiene) as contracted by droplet infection, or indirectly "in food and drink, by hand and mouth infection or by such sectors as cups, spoons and other things that are mouthed."

Does the sweet potato have good nutritive qualities?

Yes. Its starch has many properties that make it valuable in industry as well as in dietetics, particularly cooking.

All starches have two portions, one water-soluble and one water-insoluble—Alpha and Beta Amylose. When a starch solution is heated, it thickens with turbulent splashing and foaming up to a certain point until a constant body or viscosity is reached.

The sweet potato has lots of Beta Amylose and gelatinizes at lower temperatures than other commercial starches. For this reason it can be used in sizing textile fibers. In cooking, sweet potato starch added to batter in all types of cakes gives uniformity of texture free from gas holes. In cake icing, sweet potato starch retards checking.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

The rains came, and none too soon either. No moisture at all since the planting of wheat and many farmers were beginning to wonder whether the crop ever would start. Now they know that part of it will grow, but how much is in doubt. Scores of wells had gone dry in the county, wells that never had gone dry before, and fall pasture was wrecked. Roughage for winter feeding of stock already is at a premium and probably will go higher. But the rain came in time to help wheat and that was the general immediate interest.

The above promise is indeed a worthy one if it could be fulfilled. That is where the cruel deception enters. That is where the entire story has not been told to the aged by persons supporting the unworkable Bigelow plan. Instead of paying the increased pensions in six months after adoption at least a year and probably two years would elapse before any benefits could be realized and then no one can tell whether the amount will be $50 a month or less than the amount now received by the aged from the state and federal government.

Like any other "ham and egg" scheme conceived to appeal to special groups the Bigelow plan requires money to operate. This money can be raised only through additional taxes on real estate and incomes. Take the real estate tax first. It could not be placed on the county tax duplicate this year in time for collection in 1940.

Since most county treasurers keep their books open until late April or May, the collection of the first half of the tax could not be completed until the spring of 1941, a year after the first applications were made.

The state income tax provided for in the Bigelow amendment could not be made to apply to 1939 income, since the Constitution already provides that taxes may not be made retroactive.

The state income tax for 1940, therefore could not be computed until the 1940 federal income taxes had been paid, which would mean that the state assessment would not be collected until late in 1941.

There is even a serious legal question as to whether any of the revenue from the proposed Bigelow state income tax could be collected before 1942.

At any rate it would be at least a year after the pensions became payable before the Bigelow taxes would raise any money to pay them.

There is, moreover, a possibility that the adoption of the Bigelow amendment automatically would have the effect of repealing the present old-age pension law.

The Bigelow amendment provides specifically that all provisions of the law and Constitution in conflict with the amendment would be superseded.

Legal authorities argue that this language would render the present old-age

HENRY WALLACE LACKS "OOMPH"

WASHINGTON—For a long time Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace hopefully has preened himself as a promising presidential candidate. What Franklin Roosevelt privately thinks of him in that light was disclosed to Senator Guy Gillette when the Iowan went to the White House to discuss neutrality.

As Gillette rose to go, the President observed that he had been thinking about Iowa's delegation to the convention next year, and it seemed to him that the wisest course would be to have it go uninstructed. Gillette, who has publicly declared himself against a third term, did not rise to the broad hint. Quietly but firmly he demurred:

"I'm not so sure about that, Mr. President. I've always felt that the Iowa delegation ought to be instructed for Henry Wallace."

"Henry is a grand person, a grand person," Roosevelt replied. "There is no question about that, and no one is fonder of him than I am. But you know as well as I do, Guy, that Henry just hasn't got 'it.'"

Gillette admitted this, but persisted in his stand. But after further discussion, during which Roosevelt repeated his contention that Wallace lacked political oomph, Gillette did give a little ground.

"Perhaps," he concluded, "the delegation shouldn't be pledged wholly to Henry. But I do think it should be at least instructed to the extent of giving him a complimentary ballot or two."

"WHAT THE 'ELL" WINCHELL

Illustrative of the unfair manner in which the Dies Committee is used as a sounding-board to blast reputable characters was the recent crack which Bundleader Fritz Kuhn took at Walter Winchell.

Winchell's real name, according to Kuhn, is "Lipschitz."

Winchell's original name actually was "Winchel." Asked why he added the extra "l," the famous columnist once wisecracked: "What the 'ell'?"

pension law ineffective, because the Bigelow amendment would conflict with it.

If this argument is correct, the 120,000 old-age pensioners who now draw pensions from the state would lose their pensions six months after the adoption of the Bigelow amendment.

They, too, would have to wait at least a year before there would be any money available to pay the pensions, in the opinion of legal authorities.

Then what would they receive? No Bigelow plan advocate can answer the question. The only thing they can be sure of is that they would lose their present pensions and assist in bankrupting the state if they are foolish enough to vote for the amendments. The aged residents of Ohio are too clear-minded to be deceived by any such ruinous Bigelow schemes.

You'd think, from the way some young people seem to feel about it, that the crowning glory of this new age is the jitterbug championship.

Shadow Over Hill House

By ELLIOTT FILLION

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY

AS I SWUNG open the door and bounced out into the hall, Coral sprang away from Mrs. Peake's door. If ever guilt was written on a woman's face, it was on hers!

Anger burned in my blood like a hot flame. I stalked down the hall and confronted her. Her lips curled sarcastically, and I was so furious I could have struck her in the face. "What are you doing here?" I demanded.

"Just what business is that of yours?" she flung back at me. "You're getting altogether above yourself, Miss Gor—don, taking me to task for anything I do HERE. I am engaged to Dr. Peake, as you know, and this is HIS house. I have a right to—"

Her face changed. She shrank back for an instant, then boldly stepped forward. The rage faded from her face, a placating expression crept over it. The flame in her blazing eyes softened to a dewy light. That woman could turn on the tear tap at will.

I cast one swift glance backward over my shoulder. Neal was standing at the head of the stairs facing us. His expression was a peculiar one. It baffled diagnosis. His eyes watched us through narrowed lids.

"The fat's in the fire now for fair," I muttered to myself. "Here's where little Sally gets thrown out on her own."

"Oh, Neal," wailed Coral. "Miss Gordon's accusing me of—"

"I didn't accuse you of anything," I cut in furiously. "I merely want to know what you were doing sneaking down this hall. I found her in front of your mother's door," I said to Neal. If I were going out over this, I was going out with colors flying. I wasn't going to pull one single punch because he was fool enough to believe in her.

His brown eyes bored deeply into mine. What he saw there must have satisfied him that I was speaking the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, as they say in court. He turned to her. His face was grim and hard.

"What WERE you doing up here?" The words were curt and cold.

She slipped her arm under his and pressed her shining black head against his shoulder.

"Oh, Neal," she sobbed. "What a way to talk to me. Are you going to take her word before mine?"

Neal stepped back and released his arm from her grasp. "I'm not taking anyone's word for anything," he said sternly. "I am asking you what you were doing up here?"

She cast swift glances from Neal to me. "I came up to—to wash my hands."

"A likely story," I flung at her. "There's a washroom off the lounge and a bathroom connected with your room. Why come up here?"

At my retort her injured appearance faded. Fury and hatred flamed in her eyes. Neal received the first shock of her wrath.

"You stand there like a fool," she stormed, "and allow her to speak to me like this. What right has she to question me? As far as question me either? I'm your fiancée, why should anyone question me if I go from one room to another in your house?"

Poor Neal! He seemed momentarily stunned by the suddenness of her attack.

"Well," she snarled at him, "am I to be taken to task by HER every time I put my head out of my room?"

"Listen, Coral," Neal found his voice—a voice I would have to have him use to me. "I have told you before that I do not know if this house is to be mine or not. I don't care if it is or isn't, although you seem to. Until we know, you have no more right here than any other of the guests."

"What about HER?" That HER relegated me to the dust under her feet.

"Josie has asked Miss Gordon to run the house for a time. That has nothing to do with you."

"Well, I like that," she ranted. "Nothing to do with me! Let me tell you, big boy, if you care anything about me, you'd better fix it

"Just what business is that of yours?" Coral flung back at me.

so this house is yours. I'm not marrying a pauper."

He flushed, then paled. "You almost compel me to hope the house is not mine." He strode away, leaving her staring after him.

It was my turn, and I took full advantage of it. I grabbed her arm and yanked her around to face me.

"From now on I'm boss here, and don't you forget it," I hurled at her. "And the next time I find you anywhere where you have no right to be, I'll have Captain Lancy lock you in your room. He'll do it if I ask him to, so watch your step. Now get downstairs where you belong."

And believe it or not, she went without another word. That she did made me more suspicious of her than before. I opened the door into Mrs. Peake's room. As far as I could see, nothing had been disturbed.

I came out, closed the door and started down the hall. Then a thought came to me. I went back, unlocked the door and took the key. The door could probably be easily opened, it was just an ordinary lock, but at least an intruder would be more careful, for he could not know if the room were occupied or not.

I started down the stairs to the lounge and, hearing a step, turned to look back. Josie was at the head of the stairs.

"I thought you were in the village," I said surprisedly.

"Neal had to have the deed to the lot—We came back for it. It was in the file in my study." Her voice was piteous.

I hated to tell her my news, but I must.

"Are you going out again?" I asked as we descended the stairs side by side.

"No. I'm too tired. Neal told me to stay and rest. He will attend to everything." Her breath caught on a sob.

"Then sit down here with me, Josie." I drew her to one of the davenport and held her cold hand in mine as I laid the key of her mother's door in her lap and told the story. To my utter amazement she began to cry; not loudly, but with a hopeless helplessness which cut me to the heart.

"Oh, Sally," she cried, "to think how I misjudged you."

"Misjudged me! What on earth do you mean?"

"I saw you lock mother's door and I thought—I can't tell you what I thought—but I was afraid—"

I knew what she had thought and what she could not now bear to say. She had thought it was I, not Coral, who was at the bottom of the Hill House mystery.

"Josie," I said gently, "I don't blame you for thinking anything at all if you saw me take that key. But Neal knows that what I have told you is the truth. He doesn't know about my locking the door. I thought of that after I was alone. Now forget everything you THOUGHT and remember that I am your friend and that anything I can do for you I will gladly do."

"And for Neal," she said softly. "Once more I stared at her. Her words seemed full of some meaning I could not catch. It was impossible for her to know—"

"You love him, don't you, Sally? I wish you could be my sister, but Coral has him under her thumb."

"How did you know, Josie?" I asked. I felt dazed that she had penetrated the secret I had known only such a short time.

"I think I've known it as long as you have, Sally. Don't be sorry I know. It shall always be our secret."

I wasn't exactly sorry, but I was bewildered. I glanced at her. She looked so frail and ill, I rose to my feet.

"It's all right," I said, "but let's not talk about it. I'm going to tuck you into bed. You are completely worn out."

I assisted her up the stairs and into bed. Then I went for some hot milk and sat beside her until she went to sleep. I would not let her get up again that night, and in the morning she did seem stronger.

I dreaded the day, and it was fully as bad as I anticipated. When we returned from the cemetery, Mrs. Peake's lawyer, a Mr. Banbury, was waiting for us. He insisted on reading Mrs. Peake's will at once and, determined, led the way to the office where Captain Lancy and Chief Forrest were waiting.

Neal led the way with Coral flanking by his side as though she had every right in the world to be there. And as his fiancée I suppose she had, but nothing could make me believe that her interest was not for Hill House instead of for Neal.

I was turning to go up the stairs to our room when Josie called me.

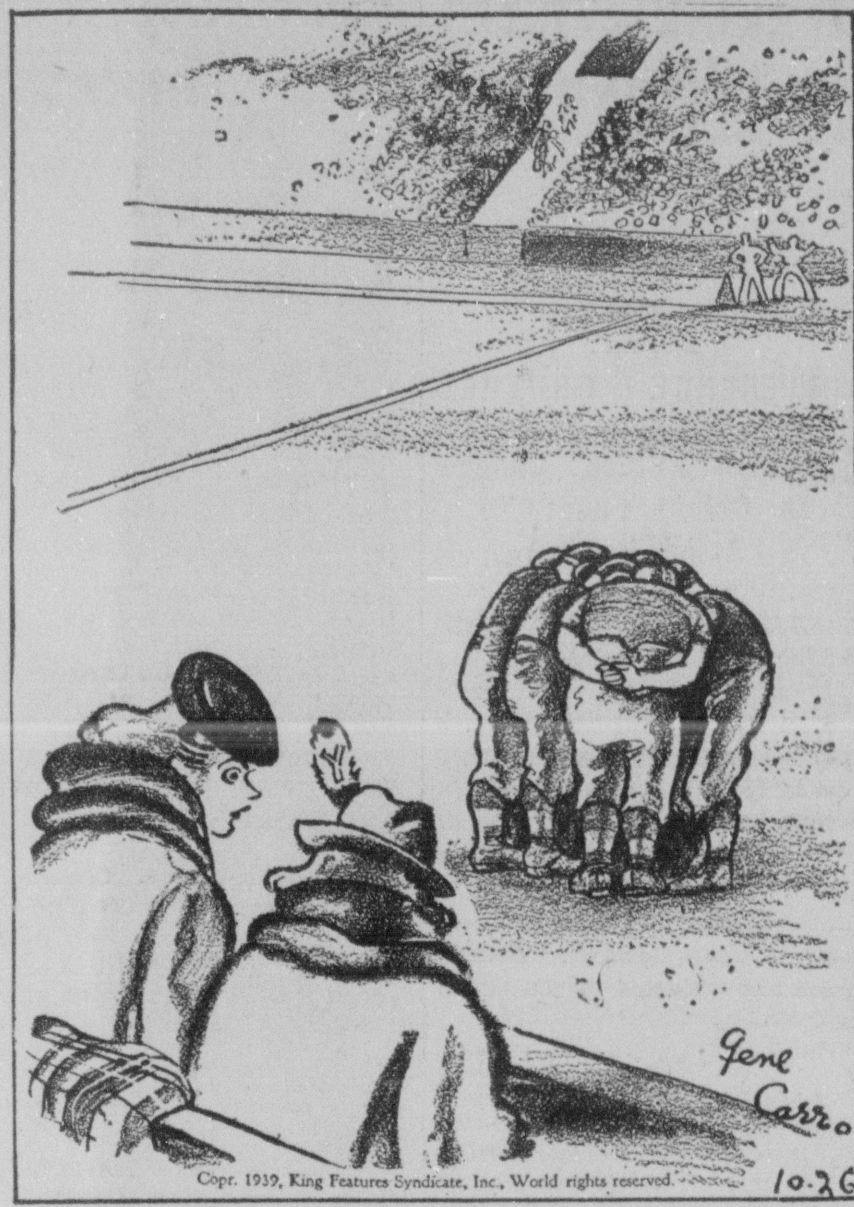

"Sally, I want you with me." Her tone was imperious.

Coral sniffed disdainfully as I entered the room. She was all in white, but it gave the impression of festive array. Her black hair in startling contrast to her white hat and her vivid red lips, the only spot of color about her, in some inexplicable way made her entirely out of place in that mournful setting.

Mr. Banbury waited for us to be seated; then with a great rustling of papers and a dry rasp clearing of his throat, he began to read.

Rabies Remains A Real Menace

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Is it true, as I have read, that there is no danger or no such thing as hydrophobia in the United States?

It is decidedly not true and such statements are dangerous and misleading. I happen to have the figures for the state of Indiana before me, and they entirely disprove the idea. From 1926 to 1938 there were

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

11,478 animal heads examined in Indiana, and 6,172 were found to have Negri bodies which indicate rabies. These animals bit or otherwise exposed 7,659 persons. Hydrophobia developed in 40 of these human beings. All died.

Horrible Disease

Hydrophobia, or rabies, is such a horrible disease, invariably fatal, that every possible precaution should be used to prevent it. The only treatment we have is the Pasteur treatment.

As is well known, rabies may not appear until some time after the bite. The shortest period noted in this Indiana series was 18 days between the bite and the onset of symptoms. The sooner the treatment is given after exposure, the better. One of the Indiana cases developed rabies after receiving the Pasteur treatment, but the treatment was not begun until the nineteenth day after exposure.

Is there any real danger in the common drinking glass?

Certainly. Mumps, tuberculosis, measles, diphtheria, influenza, the common cold, scarlet fever, whooping cough, trench mouth and pneumonia are diseases listed by Dr. M. J. Rosenau (Preventive Medicine and Hygiene) as contracted by droplet infection, or indirectly "in food and drink, by hand and mouth infection or by such sectors as cups, spoons and other things that are mouthed."

Does the sweet potato have good nutritive qualities?

Yes. Its starch has many properties that make it valuable in industry as well as in dietetics, particularly cooking.

All starches have two portions, one water-soluble and one water-insoluble—Alpha and Beta Amylose. When a starch solution is heated, it thickens with turbulent splashing and foaming up to a certain point until a constant body or viscosity is reached.

The sweet potato has lots of Beta Amylose and gelatinizes at lower temperatures than other commercial starches. For this reason it can be used in sizing textile fibers. In cooking, sweet potato starch added to batter in all types of cakes gives uniformity of texture free from gas holes. In ice cream, sweet potato starch retards checking.

Pages from the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

The rains came, and none too soon either. No moisture at all since the planting of wheat and many farmers were beginning to wonder whether the crop ever would start. Now they know that part of it will grow, but how much is in doubt. Scores of wells had gone dry in the county, wells that never had gone dry before, and fall pasture was wrecked. Roughage for winter feeding of stock already is at a premium and probably will go higher. But the rain came in time to help wheat and that was the general immediate interest.

Took a brief ride with Mayor Bill to test out his new buggy and on 56 west of town he called attention to the two largest sassafras trees I ever saw. Growing on the old Jim Swearingen place a couple of

Saw a one-man circus on East Main Street. A motor bike rider was chugging along ahead of me at probably 20 miles an hour. Suddenly he stood up and released the handle bars. I followed him until he turned off on the Lancaster Pike, still riding erect and without touching the handle bars. As he rode along he only used his hands to wave at pedestrians. That certainly was flirting with old man sudden finish.

Orva Lee Blankenship, Robert Peters Marry

Newly-Furnished Home Scene Of Ceremony

In a ceremony performed in their newly furnished home, 408 East Ohio Street, Miss Orva Lee Blankenship of Chillicothe became the bride of Mr. Robert Peters of Circleville, Wednesday at 8 p. m. Elder E. A. Huchison of the Baptist Church of Hamilton read the single ring ceremony in the presence of the parents of the bride and bridegroom and a few close friends.

A frock of burgundy velvet was chosen by Miss Blankenship for her wedding, with which she wore matching sandals and hat. Her shoulder corsage was of pink rose buds and white pompons.

Mrs. Brannon Everitt, a close friend of the bride, served as her bridesmaid. Her attractive frock of green velvet was complemented with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow rose buds.

Mr. Charles Goeller of Circleville, a school friend of Mr. Peters, was his best man.

The guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Blankenship of 76½ North Paint Street, Chillicothe, parents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Peters, 621 North Court Street, parents of the bridegroom; Mrs. Perry Lee, Chillicothe, sister of the bride; and Mrs. Mrs. E. A. Huchison of Hamilton.

Immediately after the service, Mr. and Mrs. Peters left for a motor trip through the South during which they will visit the Smoky Mountain National Park. On their return they will reside in their home on East Ohio Street. For traveling Mrs. Peters wore a frock of grey, trimmed with furs and red topped with a black skunk coat and black hat.

Mr. Peters is employed at the Stum and Dillard company, Circleville.

The former Miss Blankenship was honored at many parties in Chillicothe preceding her wedding. The last of these was the bridge arranged by Kappa Gamma Rho sorority, of which she is a member, Tuesday night at the Town House.

Supper was served at one long table decorated in the Halloween motif preceding the games of progressive contract bridge in play at four tables.

The honor guest received a lovely gift from the sorority and score awards in the games were presented Mrs. Richard Graves and Mrs. Frank Hill.

Preceding the wedding Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Peters entertained Elder and Mrs. Huchison at dinner at 6 o'clock in their home on North Court Street. Elder Huchison and Mr. Peters have been friends for many years.

Mystery Party

With the guests all agog for days over the invitations received for a mystery party, their expectations of a good time were more than realized when they were entertained Wednesday evening at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. David Dunlap by Mrs. Howard Newell Stevenson, Mrs. Emmitt L. Crist, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap and Miss Louise Mason.

Conforming to the request of the poetical invitations, the guests attended the party dressed to represent songs. After gathering at the home of Mrs. Robert Musser as directed, they proceeded to the Dunlap farm, stopping enroute at the home of Mrs. J. I. Smith, Jr., just long enough to give her an anxious moment as the question of hostess for the affair was still unsolved.

Mrs. David Dunlap, Mrs. H. P. Folsom, Mrs. William Foresman and Mrs. Charles Mason served as hostesses for the evening.

Typical Halloween games were enjoyed under the direction of Miss Mary Evens of Chillicothe, sister of Mrs. Crist, who in her masquerade of an old witch kept the group guessing during the evening.

A lunch of appropriate Halloween viands was served to 35 guests.

one quart boiling water, one tablespoon vinegar, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon granulated sugar, nine to 12 small whole, peeled white onions; one bunch carrots, pared; nine small potatoes, pared; four tablespoons flour. Cut the meat, which has been freed of gristle and most of its fat, into suitable pieces. Flour it and brown lightly in the hot fat in a covered kettle or Dutch oven. Add the boiling water, the vinegar, and simmer one and one-quarter hours. Then add the salt and sugar, and continue simmering. Now begin cooking the onions in boiling salted water to cover. Cut carrots in quarters lengthwise, and 10 minutes later begin cooking the carrots and the potatoes in separate saucepans with boiling salted water to cover. When the vegetables are tender, add them without the cooking water (which should be reserved) to the meat. Then combine the cooking water from the three vegetables and cool slightly. Now mix the flour to a smooth paste with six tablespoons of the combined vegetable liquor. Then add the rest of the combined vegetable liquor, about two cups. Pour this into the meat and stir until the gravy is thickened and smooth. If too thick, add a little water or vegetable liquor. If too thin, add more flour mixed to a smooth cream. Finally taste the stew and add salt and pepper as you see fit. Serves six.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

A practical housewife has found the following an effective way to clean white satin: Stretch satin over ironing board and apply commercial stain remover suitable for silks. Apply this on any spots and then sponge satin lightly with very weak solution of borax and water (about one teaspoon borax to one quart water). Take care to follow the grain of the satin so that the surface is not roughened. When satin is dry, press on wrong side.

Orva Lee Blankenship, Robert Peters Marry

Newly-Furnished Home Scene Of Ceremony

In a ceremony performed in their newly furnished home, 408 East Ohio Street, Miss Orva Lee Blankenship of Chillicothe became the bride of Mr. Robert Peters of Circleville, Wednesday at 8 p. m. Elder E. A. Huchison of the Baptist Church of Hamilton read the single ring ceremony in the presence of the parents of the bride and bridegroom and a few close friends.

A frock of burgundy velvet was chosen by Miss Blankenship for her wedding, with which she wore matching sandals and hat. Her shoulder corsage was of pink rose buds and white pompons.

Mrs. Brannon Everett, a close friend of the bride, served as her bridesmaid. Her attractive frock of green velvet was complemented with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow rose buds.

Mr. Charles Goeller of Circleville, a school friend of Mr. Peters, was his best man.

The guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Blankenship of 76½ North Paint Street, Chillicothe, parents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Peters, 621 North Court Street, parents of the bridegroom; Mrs. Perry Lee, Chillicothe, sister of the bride; and Mrs. Mrs. E. A. Huchison of Hamilton.

Immediately after the service, Mr. and Mrs. Peters left for a motor trip through the South during which they will visit the Smoky Mountain National Park. On their return they will reside in their home on East Ohio Street. For traveling Mrs. Peters wore a frock of grey, trimmed with firemen's red topped with a black skunk coat and black hat.

Mr. Peters is employed at the Stum and Dillard company, Circleville.

The former Miss Blankenship was honored at many parties in Chillicothe preceding her wedding. The last of these was the bridge arranged by Kappa Gamma Rho sorority, of which she is a member, Tuesday night at the Town House.

Supper was served at one long table decorated in the Halloween motif preceding the games of progressive contract bridge in play at four tables.

The honor guest received a lovely gift from the sorority and score awards in the games were presented Mrs. Richard Graves and Mrs. Frank Hill.

Preceding the wedding Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Peters entertained Elder and Mrs. Huchison at dinner at 6 o'clock in their home on North Court Street. Elder Huchison and Mr. Peters have been friends for many years.

Mystery Party

With the guests all agog for days over the invitations received for a mystery party, their expectations of a good time were more than realized when they were entertained Wednesday evening at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. David Dunlap by Mrs. Howard Newell Stevenson, Mrs. Emmitt L. Crist, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap and Miss Louise Mason.

Conforming to the request of the poetical invitations, the guests attended the party dressed to represent songs. After gathering at the home of Mrs. Robert Musser as directed, they proceeded to the Dunlap farm, stopping enroute at the home of Mrs. J. I. Smith, Jr., just long enough to give her an anxious moment as the question of hostess for the affair was still unsolved.

Mrs. David Dunlap, Mrs. H. P. Folsom, Mrs. William Foreman and Mrs. Charles Mason served as hostesses for the evening.

Typical Halloween games were enjoyed under the direction of Miss Mary Evens of Chillicothe, sister of Mrs. Crist, who in her masquerade of an old witch kept the group guessing during the evening.

A lunch of appropriate Halloween viands was served to 35 guests.

The skirt is straight.

26 TIGERS TREK TO WILMINGTON

Bob Brown To Captain Red And Black In League Game

Coaches Roy Black and Tom Armstrong and 26 of their Red and Black gridiron stalwarts were ready to embark at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon in Marvin Dumm's bus for Wilmington where a mud battle will be in prospect. The game is called at 8 o'clock, the contest being booked as an important one in the South Central Ohio League.

Wilmington has won two and lost one in league competition while the Tigers have knocked off their only encounter, that with Greenfield McClain. Hillsboro and Washington C. H. meet in a crucial game tonight on the Fayette County field.

Coach Black put his boys through a "skull" test Wednesday evening when a heavy rain halted field practice. The Tiger mentor has designated Bob Brown, dependable junior center, as captain of the team tonight. All other captains this year have been seniors.

Officials at Wilmington will all be Dayton, O., men including Dudley, Kensie and Daum.

INTERSECTIONAL TILTS WATCHED WITH INTEREST

Buck-Cornell Contest And Michigan-Yale Test Get Attention

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—The growing tendency to clutter up the football schedule with intersectional games will result in a bumper crop of battles between teams from widely separated sections on Saturday. Moreover, sprinkled through the program will be engagements involving some of the few remaining teams with clean records, and perpetration of more widespread grief due to the defeat of favorites seems almost inevitable, although there can scarcely be any such form upheaval as the one last week. In fact another Saturday like that would leave only the river to provide solace for some of our better football practitioners.

The undefeated eleven of Cornell and Ohio State will stage the day's major attraction in the Midwest, but close to that one in that vicinity and also of intersectional prominence will be unbeaten Michigan's clash with Yale, while in the East Penn will match its clean slate against North Carolina, which is unbeaten but suffered a tie against Tulane.

Notre Dame, which may be the best team in the country, will know more about that after tangling up with once beaten Carnegie Tech in an East-West encounter. In a game tomorrow, Duquesne, not only unbeaten and untied but also humbler of mighty Pitt, as it is known, will oppose Texas Tech.

That winds up the major intersectional games, but doesn't account for all of them of top ranking, nor does it include all the battles in which the major eleven with clean slates will go to war.

Others of more than passing interest in the intersectional classification include New York University-Georgia, Columbia-V.M.I., Villa Nova-Arkansas, Western Maryland-Boston U., Marquette-Arizona, Tulsa-Detroit, Santa Clara-Purdue, and Kentucky-Xavier, the latter being both intersectional and a workout for a team with a clean slate, the same being Kentucky.

Other unbeaten eleven which will go into action include Texas A. and M. against Baylor, the former being unwhipped so far; undefeated Mississippi against once tied Tulane; terrific Tennessee against little Mercer, and Oregon State, with an unsullied record and an eye on the coast conference championship, against Washington State.

BUDDY WALKER TO MEET PROTEGE OF DEMPSEY

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—Central Ohio's greatest heavyweight fight, in more than a decade will be offered in Columbus Auditorium on Monday, October 31, bringing together two of the finest youngsters in the country. They are Jack "Buddy" Walker of Columbus, undefeated claimant of the Ohio championship, and Wild Bill Boyd of Birmingham, Ala., who is hailed by Jack Dempsey as a sure shot to own Joe Louis' crown within two years.

Boyd attracted nation-wide attention while serving in the U. S. Navy, winning the fleet and all-service titles in addition to four amateur crowns. He held the Navy belt for two years, a feat that not even the illustrious Tom Sharkey could achieve.

The report shows 15 persons in the hospital on July 15. During the three month period there were 232 patients admitted, 275 treated, 232 discharged, seven deaths, 33 births, 79 operations and a total of 1,333 days of care.

Mr. Herrmann, who requested the legislation, was absent from the meeting.

Milk Measure Up

The ordinance providing for the inspection and regulation of the sale of milk and milk products in compliance with the 1939 edition of the United States Public Health Service milk regulations was given a second reading. These regulations are embodied in a pamphlet accompanying a brief ordinance.

Councilmen Julius Helwage and Donald Mason were elected by other members of council to continue for another year as members of the police pension board.

Other members of the board include Harry Moore, Emmett Crist, Patrolman George Green and Police Chief William McCrady.

Balances in the city's funds as reported to council Wednesday night included: general $8,347.55, library $1,988.39, auto street repair $62.38, gasoline tax $547.67, Berger Hospital $1,571.82, disposal plant operating fund $3,565.85, and disposal plant building fund $3,950.42.

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

THE SLOW DOWN STRIKE

Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad. When they get mad they listen to nobody—least of all their friends. And so power always moves toward self destruction. It resents the fly wheel, the throttle, the governor, the brake.

History is filled with examples. The pompous court of George III would not listen to Burke, Fox and Sheridan, and so America was lost. The arrogant absentee landlords of Ireland would listen to no voice of moderation and so Erin was lost to the Empire. The bigger they come the harder they fall.

One wonders if the wine of power has not gone to the heads of certain labor leaders and if they are not now riding to a fall—the loss of the good will of the public.

Consider the "slow down" strike, the successor to the "sit down." The sit down rode to a fall. It lost the support of the public. The United States Supreme Court condemned it. State legislatures made it an outlaw. But like bournons in capital, the bournons in labor also forget nothing and learn nothing. It is a thrice told tale.

The slow down is not American. It is alien. It has its roots in Spanish syndicalism, and French communism. Because it is not American, it can not succeed in America. It does not belong in the American labor movement.

The slow down is a species of sabotage. Instead of throwing wooden shoes into machinery, kinks are made in it. On the assembly line one car out of four is left unpainted. This stops the whole line and all workers on the line, including those who want to work. Meantime the saboteurs draw full time pay for three-quarter time work. In this respect it is less honorable than the sit down. In the sit down they hang on to their pay while doing little or nothing to earn it.

No factory can long operate under conditions of deliberate sabotage. So the factory closes, as Chrysler in Detroit has done with thousands of men out of work, and idleness spreading to workers in allied lines as well as the automobile salesmen who can not fill the orders which would give men jobs.

But in forcing the boss to suspend operations it is supposed that he will be put in a bad light with the public. He will be accused of a lockout. In addition when men walk out they endanger their chance for public relief or strike benefits. But when the slow down forces the boss to suspend operations they can appear to be out of work through no fault of their own.

It is all very cunning. But cunning is a "short runner," as they say on the race tracks. It does not carry men far. A full day's work for a full day's pay is solid granite. The slow down is shifting sand where labor can not safely build its house. What is true, is safe.

The Communists think they are devilishly smart. They take advantage, for a time, of the fairness and tolerance of the average American. But Americans are not full time boobs. You can't fool all of them all the time. Mr. Attorney General Murphy has been saying that he will protect the civil rights of Americans.

I congratulate him sincerely. But the greatest civil right of all is the right to work. What about the laboring man—and his name is legion, who does not believe in the slow down. Now that practically all interference with production is interference with interstate commerce what is Mr. Murphy and Secretary Perkins and Mr. Roosevelt going to do about it? Or has the "illegality" of the slow down not been determined?

Maybe John Lewis has his weathervane eye peeled better than Miss Perkins. He announced the other day that Communists must be driven out of the CIO "while the lamp holds out to burn the vilest sinner may return." Mr. Lewis will find ample room on the mourners bench. But the public may be pardoned for asking further proofs of repentance. To unfrock a few known Communists will mean little if the tactics they use are retained.

Meantime who pays the bill both in dollars and good will? Every worker in America. When costs go up and production goes down, fewer cars are sold. Less iron is mined. Less coal is burned. Fewer freight cars move. Fewer tires are made. Every worker in all these industries and hundreds more pay for the slow down in fewer jobs.

And as costs are forced up without an increase in production the worker pays again. For every worker is a consumer. As a seller of his labor he has fewer bidders for his time, and as a buyer of commodities the price of the slow down comes by increased prices out of his own pocketbook.

SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL.
